

Douglas B. Boebinger, PMP

Douglas B. Boebinger, PMP, is president and founder of Integrated Process Developers, Inc. located in Plymouth, MI. He has spent the over 25 years assisting companies in various industries as a project manager and as a consultant / trainer to implement project management and improve their project processes.

Doug received his undergraduate and graduate degrees in Construction Engineering and Management from Purdue University. His summer internship took him to Honolulu, HI, West Los Angeles, CA and Pasadena, CA where he worked on the construction management crew on high rise residential towers and an office complex.

After his graduation, he joined a construction management company in Indianapolis, IN where he was a member of the construction management team on the FedEx air hub at the Indianapolis airport and the Indianapolis Zoo project where he successfully managed millions of dollars of construction contracts.

As a project manager and operations control manager at a national structural steel company in southeast Michigan, he was responsible for millions of dollars of construction renovation and new construction in various states around the country.

Doug then joined a project management consulting company providing project management consulting services to Ford Motor Company.

In 1997, he founded Integrated Process Developers, Inc. (IPDI), an international project management consulting and training company providing project management implementation and process improvement services to numerous companies around the country. He has also assembled multiple project management training courses. Doug has provided consulting and training services to Fortune 500 companies in order to prepare its people and projects to meet today's business needs.

Doug is Project Management Professional (PMP)[®] certified with the Project Management Institute (PMI)[®] since 1994.

IPDI is a Registered Education Provider (R.E.P.) with the Project Management Institute (PMI)[®] since 2001.

Doug has been teaching a wide variety of Project Management courses, including PMP preparation courses for the past 18 years.

As an adjunct faculty member at many universities across the US and Canada, Doug has taught many company executives through the university's executive education programs. At Cleary University, he was the Project Management Department Chair where he created their original project management degree program and core project management courses.

Doug is also done several presentations at PMI's conferences as well as numerous presentations at PMI Chapter dinner meeting and Professional Development Days (PDD's). Doug is also a published author writing articles for several magazines and a contributing author for the book "The Keys to Our Success – Lessons Learned from 25 of our Best Project Managers" writing the "Hope for the Best; Plan for the Worst" chapter on Black Swan risks.

Doug enjoys helping others learn the necessary skills to be certified as a Project Management Professional (PMP) but his biggest joy is working in the field with other project managers passing on his knowledge through mentoring and managing.

PMI and PMP are registered marks of Project Management Institute, Inc.

The PMI Registered Education Provider logo is a registered mark of the Project Management Institute, Inc.
